THE STRANGE STORY —OR— Allan Quatermain's Wife

BY H. RIDER HAGGARD.
AUTHOR OF "KING SOLOMON'S
MINES," "JESS," "GLAZO-PATRA," & "THE
NEW AFRICAN ROMANCE."

The giant stood before him, looking at him, and as he stood, Indabazimbi walked across the tiny lake, his feet making no sound as he passed. "Keep cool, Macmanah, and wait for him!"

And that was the slightest intention of commencing the fray, I thought this good advice.

Heaven! how long that half-minute seemed! It happened many years ago, but the whole scene rises up before my eyes as I write. There behind us lay the blood-stained lake and near it lay the piles of dead round us was rank upon rank of plumed warriors, standing in silence to wait the issue of the duel, and in the center stood the gray-haired chief and general, Sumus, with all his eyes fixed on the leopard skin upon his shoulders. A clock of leopard skin upon his shoulders.

For a moment there was silence; then a great cry rose up of "Romanyus is dead." The white spirit has slain the black. The white spirit has slain the black. The white spirit has slain the black.

Instantly I was surrounded by fierce faces, and spears flashed before my eyes. I followed my arms and stood calmly waiting the end. In a moment I was surrounded by the warriors were mad at seeing their champion slain before their eyes.

"Stand back, you fools," I cried, "and let me pass!"

Life again. But you have brought this upon yourself. That, as I believed, he would have stayed with you, and you would have become unconquerable.

"You're right," I answered, "and you are on my way to try to kill him. Now he will stay and you will stay."

"You're right," I answered, "and you are on my way to try to kill him. Now he will stay and you will stay."

the Kafirs and women on the preceding night. He took by the hand.

"The Unwetables will go after the one presently," he answered, "and we have seen enough of them."

NERVOUS DEBILITY.
Weakness, Nervousness, Dispendency, and Depression of Mind.

We are careless of our strength, vigor and energy in youth and early life. We use them up in business, work, pleasure or dissipation, and suddenly find ourselves old before our time.

Luckily, there is a great and wonderful remedy which will give back to the weakened and exhausted system the strength and vigor which it has lost.

I was afflicted for five years with nervous debility, and last winter I was down sick for a long time.

A CHEAP GREENHOUSE.
The Value of a Greenhouse to Those Who Cultivate Plants.

If those who cultivate house-plants know how much better they can be grown in a room by themselves where the temperature and moisture can be regulated to suit their wants, there would be, says the American Agriculturist, more small greenhouses.

The idea seems to prevail that even a small greenhouse costs a great deal. It is possible, however, to build a lean-to house eight by twelve feet, and eight feet high at the highest part and five feet at the lowest, for less than a hundred dollars.
